

How are messages sent to one another?

The message then goes through radio waves that lead to a control channel

You first type the message you are going to send.

That's how we are able to talk through one another through messages and phone calls

That control tower lets you communicate with others either messages or phone calls